

Portugal is a country located on the Iberian Peninsula, It offers stunning cuisine, vibrant coastlines, beautiful cities like Porto or Lisbon, a rich culture heritage with fado music and traditional festivals.

Portugal is a parliamentary democracy with a semi-presidential system. It's political landscape was characterized by coalition governments and a multy party system, with major parties including the social Democratic party and the left block. The former president is Marcelo Rebelo de Sousa. Economic challenges ,particularly concerning debt levels and austerity measures were significant political issues.

“How to eradicate gender, homophobic, xenophobic, racist and antisemitic conflicts on a European scale?”

Portugal is a country that seeks equality and is willing to fight for it.

This issue requires a multifaceted approach involving legislative measures, education, awareness campaigns, and fostering a culture of inclusivity and tolerance. In Portugal as in another European countries, This could involve strengthening anti discrimination laws, promoting diversity and inclusion in education, supporting organizations that combat hate speech and discrimination.

Additionally, promoting equal opportunities and access to resources for all individuals, regardless of gender, sexual orientation, ethnicity or religion, can help build a more inclusive society. Collaborating among European nations, sharing best practices, and coordinating efforts to combat discrimination and promote human rights can also be effective in addressing these challenges on a broader scale.

Portugal is a friendly country, his principal allies are Spain, Switzerland, Norway,United Kingdom and France. Portugal actively collaborates with them :

1-Exchange of best practices: Portugal exchanges best practices with other European countries through forums, conferences, and working groups focused on equality and diversity. This allows for sharing successful strategies and learning from each other's experiences

2- European social Funds: Portugal benefits from EU funding through programs like the European Social Fund, which supports initiatives to promote social inclusion, combat poverty, and address inequalities in employment and education.

3-Eu framework for equality and non discrimination: Portugal participates in EU initiatives aimed at promoting equality and combating discrimination based on gender, sexual orientation, ethnicity, religion, or other factors. This includes implementing EU directives and regulations related to equal treatment and non-discrimination.

4- Participations in European networks : Portugal is involved in European networks and platforms dedicated to promoting equality and combating discrimination, such as the European Network of Equality Bodies (Equinet) or the European Coalition of Cities Against Racism (ECCAR).
